Installment of the Vision

BRITISH COLUMBIA IS DIrectly concerned with the report of a Royal Commission on a proposed Alberta railway. Two members of the commission say that the line to Pine Point, on Great Slave Lake, should be built on a western route which would connect with the Pacific Great Eastern Railway. The third member favors an eastern route, directly north from Edmonton which would provide no new traffic for the PGE

But more than British Columbia's interests are involved in the Federal Government's decision between the majority and minority reports of the commission.

The route favored by the majority starts at Grimshaw, on the Alberta railway system. It runs north for about 500 miles through some of the best farm land in the Peace River country, now sparsely occupied. The few farmers there haul their grain to Grimshaw in trucks, sometimes a distance of more than 300 miles, at great cost.

Though the proposed railway is designed primarily to tap the rich mineral deposits of Pine Point, it could be used without extra expense to open up large agricultural areas that Canada will need some day.

Premier Bennett has been quite in advocating the western route, from Grimshaw. He is right in believing that the new line should run through a country which later on will support a large population, rather than through a country where there can be little if any farming and no large population.

Mr. Bennett is right also in believ-ing that the Grimshaw line would virtually an extension of the PGE all the way into the high north and thus would channel at least some of its traffic southward into Vancouver, to British Columbia's

Two members of the Royal Commission agree with him and add that and of not much practical use should western route would cost someless than its alternative, though its mileage would be slightly

It is for the Federal Government to decide between the two reports -a tricky political decision, of course, because each of the alternatives has its strong supporters and the businessmen of Edmonton generally seem to favor the eastern route because it would help increase their northern business.

But it is to be hoped that the Government will rise above these local politics and decide the issue on broad grounds of national interest, as recommended by the majority report. Here is Mr. Diefenbaker's chance to apply his famous vision of the north in practical terms.

Nicest Possible Way

MR. PEARKES, SAYS THE Montreal Star, has a way of making one's blood run cold "in the nicest possible way." Thus he has casually informed Parliament that there is really no defence against ballistic missiles, except the fear of

"That is to say," The Star con-cludes, "that the Russians won't rocket us to death because we would in return rocket them to death, only more so. Western retaliatory forces would create such devastation, he (Mr. Pearkes) said, that the Soviet Government would collapse. Land armies would not be needed. The West would merely have to walk in and rehabilitate the stricken areas." there is in fact a real chance of the Russian Government folding up, The Star suggests, then we should also give some thought to the life expectancy of the Western governments. For by the time the had devastated Russia, would have devastated the West.

This, however, does not seem to occur to Mr. Pearkes, The Star complains. "He seems to think that all the Russian rockets would miss while the missiles of the Western powers would score direct hits on everything from the Kremlin down to the meanest sheepfold in the Caucasus. Somehow or other, we fear this is a simplification of the likely course of events."

So it is, but The Star, living far from his home in Saanich, misjudges Mr. Pearkes. He is not so simple as he may appear in Parlia-Nor so over-confident either about our defences, so-called.

Rebuilding the Wreck

THE NATIONAL BRAINS OF Social Credit are meeting in Ottawa this week to rebuild the wreckage of the 1958 election. It will be a big job.

At the moment Social Credit can be called a national party only as a courtesy. Its 82 candidates in the last federal election, including its 19 former members of Parliament, were all defeated. Since then it has won an overwhelming victory in Alberta but only because Alberta likes the able Manning Government in provincial affairs. The signs of revival detected by Social Credit spokesmen in other prairie provinces and in the east are not visible to the naked eye of the ordinary voter.

Nevertheless, hope springs eter-nal and some 50 delegates, now assembling at the capital, are preparing to call a national convention next year. It was to have been held this year but was postponed by a shortage of money and enthusiasm. The present conference plans to issue a sort of working paper which the later convention will refine in an election platform.

In a purely academic sense, since Social Credit is not practical politics in national affairs, it will be inter-esting to see whether its leadership is still under the control of the old doctrinaires and hot-gospelers, to whom the original theories of the late Major Douglas were the final revelation. If so, Social Credit continue to be only a name outside Alberta and British Columbia.

If the Ottawa conference listens to our Mr. Bennett it will begin to fade out Social Credit which he has always regarded as a quaint mumbo-jumbo. Instead of assuming that a neat monetary formula of con-trived inflation can solve all our problems it will address itself to the actual problems of the country. Then it might have some useful ideas to offer to the general debate. But the old myths die hard and that is why the Social Crediters visit Ottawa as private citizens, not as Members of Parliament.

Gesture of Compassion

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT deserves credit for removing at least one cruel anachronism from Canadian immigration regulations.

In the past, generous Canadians were prevented from adopting Chinese, Korean and certain other orphans of colored races. These children were not admitted to Canada unless they were close relatives of Canadian residents. Now that particular barrier has been removed.

It is unlikely, of course, that many of the pitiable waifs now parentless and adrift in the world storm will be adopted by Canadians. But a few of them may find homes here and become good citizens of this country-a small gesture of Canada's compassion but a proper one, too long delayed.

THE CONGO AND THE UN

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Light in Darkest Africa

ANYONE who thinks that the United Nations is a mere talking machine take a good look at the situation in the Congo. He will find that the situation is very bad and that the future of the Congo Republic is sure to be full of great trouble But he will also find that without the UN, as it is now administered with the gen-ius of Mr. Dag Ham-

Lippmann aus of Mr. Dag Hammarskjold, the situation would be worse than very bad. It would be desperate and hopeless. Above all it would be a and hopeless. Above all it would be a very great danger to the peace of Africa and it could well be a danger to the peace of the world.

The Congo is a very large and a very rich and a very primitive country. Suddenly and with almost no notice it was granted independence. There had been no serious preparation for self-government. There is no educated native governing class. There is no native civil service, there are no native technicians and administrators for the big industrial enterprises which have come under the legal authority of the Congolese government.

The suddenness with which indelack of preparation of the natives for self-government, precipitated the crisis in which the authority of the government collapsed. The European popula tion, which is in serious danger, will probably have to be in the main evacuated. The Congo has fallen apart and is faced with civil war.

In the imperialist days of the nine teenth century such a collapse of authority would have meant intervention by the great powers. They would have moved in not only to restore order but also to partition the country into spheres of influence. In the Congo the immediately interested powers are Belgium, France, Great Britain, and Portugal, But as the world is today these powers could not intervene without the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. each taking a hand as

This would in the present state of world opinion be intolerable.

There exists then a vacuum of authority in one of the richest and largest and most tempting underde oped territories in the world. The Congolese government cannot now maintain order, and it will be a long time before it has learned how to administer the country. On the other hand, the great powers cannot now fill the vacuum of authority without a serious danger of conflict among themselves and without affronting opinion throughout the world.

In this situation the United Nations would have to be invented if it did not already exist. Those who read, as every serious student of international affairs should, the report of the Secretary-General to the Security Council will find there, in the veiled language of diplomacy, a fascinating and inspiring story It is the story of how an international force is being created to meet the situation in the Congo.

A lot has been said about how there ought to be at the disposal of the United Nations an international force. But Mr. Hammarskjold's report shows that he is raising not an international force as such and theoretically for all occasio but a specialized force tailored exactly with tact and ingenuity to the situation in the Congo.

The force is being drawn primarily from the independent African states, from those not too much involved in international disputes. It is being drawn also from states that are neutral or at least not active belligerents in the cold war. The force is going to the Congo at the request of the Congolese governmert and it is instructed to regard that government as the "host". Its objective is to restore order, enabling the Europeans to stay on with safety or to leave, and thus making it unnecessary for the Belgian troops to remain.

With the force will come relief to which we and the Russians and others who are sending no troops will contribute supplies. The UN force in the Congo will, if the emergency passes, become the means of supplying the Congolesa government with the technical aid it so sorely needs.

This UN enterprise is the most advanced and the most sophisticated ex-periment in international co-operation ever attempted. Among all that is so sad and so mean and so sour in world politics, it is heartening to think that something so good and so pure in its purpose is possible. No one can say that the experiment will succeed. But there is no doubt that it deserves to succeed. Quietly and unobtrusively all the influence of all the governments should be exerted in Leopoldville and in Brussels and elsewhere to help make it

Obviously, the UN cannot succeed if the Soviet Union accepts the invitation of Prime Minister Lumumba to intervene. But it is hard to see what the Soviet government would have to gain by opening up a direct conflict, not with the United States which has no troops in the Congo but, with the United Nations itself. For the other great powers in the United Nations could not stand aside if the UN force were attacked and its authority defied.

For one thing the lakes inhabited by turtles in this area. are relatively isolated and not easily visited (e.g. Patterson Lake); there seems no reason why anyone would want to turn turtles loose in such an area. Moreover, the scale pattern of ese turtles is slightly different from that of the mainland population which suggests that these reptiles have been in the Alberni district for a long time.

Modern turtles represent an ancient but highly specialized group of reptiles. Turtles, some of huge size, existed as long ago as roughly 500 million years according to the fossil record. Presentday species are but a remnant of a great line but they still retain the bony shell covering the body, the knife-edged jaws, and scales in some form or other.

The upper shell consists of the great-ly expanded ribs and the backbone fused together to form a solid shield. This is united at the sides with the lower shell formed also of bone. The whole struc-ture is covered with a layer of horny scutes or enlarged scales except in soft shell turtles and in our Leatherbacks in which case bone and scutes are lacking. Despite its ancient lineage and considerable persecution or interference by man turtles are still with us in fair numbers except in certain areas. The situation seems to have been summed up adequately by Ogden Nash who wrote:

In such a fix to be so fertile!"

Dogs for Food

Whilst I realize that we have many problems involving animals to deal with both in this province and in Canada, nevertheless I want to make an appeal in this instance for the unfortunate dog population of Pakistan. It appears that population of Pakistan. It appears that there is a proposal to export all unwanted dogs from Pakistan to Korea where they will be slaughtered and used for making soup. It takes very little imagination to appreciate the neglect and cruelty these dogs will suffer.

In my experience I have seen many abuses to animals but I frankly find this proposal to be one of the most nauseating and inhumane methods ever proposed to dispose of an unwanted animal population. When abuses to ani-mals occur in Canada, at least we have the satisfaction of being able to take concrete action. In this case there is little we can do except to protest to the authorities throughout the world.

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Here before me on my desk is a book sent me by my good friend, Dr. Hervey Cleckley, one of America's most dis-tinguished psychiatrists. It is entitled "A Physician Looks at Psychiatry." It is written by an able man, Dr. Jacques M. May of New York City, and it tells of the painful ex-perience he had with a prominent child psychiatrist, when he sought help for his mentally re-tarded twin boys. Dr.

May tells us that the psychiatrist treated him heartlessly and discourteously, as if he were a slow-witted layman who knew nothing of medicine. There was not the slightest show of friendliness or sympathy for the fellow-doctor faced by a terrible problem and a great

Right off, Dr. May was told that he and Right off, Dr. May was told that he and his wife were responsible for the mental trouble of the twins. The parents "were culprits who were reluctant to admit their criminal rejection of their children, and the harm they had done them." As the analyst said, in the next five years this skulduggery would have to be confessed by them during the course of two very expensive courses of psychoananlysis. But when the analyst dis-covered that Dr. May was a research doctor on a moderate salary, he instantly dismissed him and put him out of the office with a bill "in three figures."

Dr. May had expected that there would be some examination of the twins with special; tests, but he soon learned that few analysts are ever interested in making any examinations of the patient. Why examine when they know all the answers the minute the patient comes in?

Eventually, after some search, Dr. May found a Child-guidance Clinic to which he could afford to go; but again, he found no one interested in examining the children; and soon he was forced to conclude that there is no relation between psychoanalysis and scientific medicine. When Dr. May asked electroencephalograms, the analysts and refused to be bothered with them.

Again, the clinic, Dr. May found that no one had any doubts about his great guilt; and in dealing with the problem, the only and in dealing with the problem. The concern of the people in charge seemed to be to trap him and his wife into admitting something that would fit in with their preconceived and fixed idea that the twins had been rejected. Dr. May had the strength to stand up against this abuse; he knew that he and his wife had treated their boys only with love and affection, but his poor wife was flattened by the feeling that perhaps, in some way, she might be guilty.

Dr. May then went to a big medical library and, for months, in all his spare time, he read widely in the field of psychiatry. As he says, he learned that for the last 40 years, the Freudians have elected to study only the stressful emotional reactions, and not the real workings of the brains of animals and men. They have been like a heart specialist who never cared to study a heart, but only the patients' psychic re-actions to their palpitations or shortness of

As Dr. May wrote, the analysts have closed their minds to all influences of heredity; also, they have refused to face the fact, so greatly against their theory, that four out of five children in a lovely family, are often normal, while one is mentally retarded or insane. With their fixed ideas, the analysts have been horribly cruel to many poor parents.

Finally, with all this, it is hard to say if ever they have really made over a mentally retarted or psychotic child. I wish a million people in America would read Dr. May's book. Perhaps, then, more analysts would be willing to give up this terrible practice of beginning their work by breaking the hearts of the parents of mentally retarded or mentally disturbed children.

People keep asking if it is true that black moles are dangerous. Yes, they are; and especially those on the hands and feet and private parts. Because once such a mole starts growing or ulcerating, it is often too late for a cure. If I had a grandchild with a few black moles on his skin, I would have them cut out now. When a black mole becomes cancerous and the cells scatter, the

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Eureka! A Prefab Bird Nest

LONDON-There are numerous occupa tions that look oh-so-glamorous from the outside, but for the young hopefuls choosing them they turn out to have the cards heavily stacked against success. Acting, for instance. So overcrowded that the odds against hitting the top are long indeed.

But the job in life that surely beats all as regards no-future-in-it is that of an inventor. The Patent Office has Reyburn just issued some revealing figures about the inventing business. It seems that 80 per cent of Britain's inventors have never had an invention accepted by a government body, and 66 per cent have been plodding away year after year without ever having one of their brain-children ac-cepted by industry. * *

Is there any other calling that has such high percentages of people getting nowhere? Yet this doesn't deter inventors, profes-sional and amateur. A record 33,653 applica-tions for patents (getting close to 100 a day!) were filed last year at the Patent Office in London, and the rate they're coming in this year looks like topping that figure.

Just what sort of saturation point the field of invention has reached is borne out by the fact that there are 2,000,000 on register at the Patent Office. Quite a backlog has been built up since a fellow named John Utynam was granted the first-ever British patent in 1449—a process for making colored glass.

It now takes 17 miles of shelves to catalogue all the inventions that have been patented there in the past 500 years, including everything from Marconi's wireless, Baird's television, Whittle's jet engine and other highly successful ones, down to such screwball contrivances as a device for pre-fabricating birds' nests and a really terrific diea for preventing the juice from running down your sleeve when you're eating

The Patent Office is conscientious about looking into every application filed with them. They have 400 examiners, but even that number can't keep up with the influx. They're a year behind with their work.

MATRICULATION

SUPPS TO WRITE?

For candidates who have failed in June examinations, special tuition in all Matriculation subjects is being offered at the School from July 26th to August 18th. About 25 hours of tuition, designed to prepare the candidate for the Supplemental Examinations, will be provided in each subject. Information about fees and timetable may be obtained from the Principal. Classes will be limited to fourteen in number. Early registration is therefore recommended.

• THE DAY SCHOOL

A regular Day School for girls and boys will begin September 8th, 1960. Courses required in the University Entrance programme will be offered at the Grades 10 and 11 level, with Grade 12 coming into operation next year. The School's "No-Frills" policy will be adhered to and the highest possible academic standard will be the aim of the tutors. Classes will be limited to 16 in number, and admission will be based upon competitive Entrance Examinations in English and Mathematics. These examinations will be held on or about August 10th. Complete details may be obtained from the Principal.

• THE EVENING DIVISION

The School will provide, through the medium of evening classes, fuition in subjects required to complete University Entrance standing according to the Interrupted Programme Regulations of the Department of Education. Designed specifically for adults who left school in Grades 10 or 11, this course will commence September 12th. Since except investigation of conditions 12th. Since careful investigation of candidates' academic records and study plans will be necessary, it is recommended that potential students in this category make early enquiries at the School.

Now's the time to SAVE-SAVE-SAVE on the year's most revolutionary car

You'll be amazed at the big car benefits Corvair's low price gives you. Qualities like Quadri-Flex suspension for the smoothest ride you've ever experienced...the kind of spaciousness that's really surprising ... the extra convenience of fold-down rear seat. In fact, you'll find Corvair is really two kinds of car. It's pure sports car in the way it handles and in the crisp eagerness of its rear-mounted Turbo-Air 6 cylinder engine. And it's a versatile family car too, with plenty of room for everyone's gear. No wonder the experts and happy owners agree, Corvair is the obvious choice for the coveted Car of the Year title. Right now a visit to your dealer will prove to you that economy is another big Corvair feature. Inspect Corvair—Car of the Year-Buy of the Year-today!

Harper Takes Top Prize In Annual Salmon Contest

By DOUG PEDEN

The modern trend toward shorter working hours appears to have hit the Solarium Salmon Derby.

And Sunday's 15th edition of the annual fishing competition at Saanich Inlet was a big day for anglers who had been strangers to the winners' circle.

Tom Harper, working an early, three-hour shift, came home the winner in Vancouver lam, who finished 22nd with a Island's largest one-day fishing fiesta. And Elwin Schnowas using a Strip Teaser with was using a Strip Teaser With ter, starting out three hours before the derby deadline of 2 p.m., finished second in the field of approximately 1,000 fishermen.

Hair Styling's a Cinch With Magnetized Rollers By PENNY SAVER

Soft bouffant hair styles that women have found to be flatteringly feminine have made the roller almost a necessity. Plastic rollers that have just arrived in one downtown store have made use of bobby pins with rollers a thing of the past. Why? Because they're magnetized! Simple to use, these rollers, priced at four for 59 cents, will cling to damp hair and eliminate need for that "hedgehog" look that some husbands complain of!

More and more, sets of Bermuda sports wear are coming accessories and carried pink in to their own. Sets that have been reduced from $13.95 to daisies, feathered carnations

Bermuda shorts, in smart sprigged floral cotton sharkskin in beige, green and brown tones, are beautifully tailored and have side zipper openings. Material is used for tallored collars of the beige shirts that complete ensemble. Shirts, that have short, cuffed sleeves and front patch pocket, are cut on lines of men's sports shirts so that they may be worn tucked in or over the shorts, just as milady chooses! Sizes range from eight to 14 but as there are only about nine sets left I'd suggest you shop as early as possible.

> A couple of North players opened with two clubs; but at all other tables the bidding started one club, pass, pass, and West re-opened with a spade bid. From then on it flying almost blind in

was an easy matter for North and South to find their diamond fit and while no one got to seven, all pairs did reach either game or small slam.
Needless to say, everyone made seven. Two leads PAINTERS and DECORATORS took care of the trump suit and South still had four trumps to take care of two hearts and two club ruffs.

Was West's spade bid a bad one? From a result standpoint it was. From a practical standpoint it

U.K. Won't Back China

For UN Seat

LONDON (UPI)—The government refused today to propose Red China's admission to the United Nations.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told parliament "it would not be appropriate to put down such a motion at the present time. One has to have regard to the facts of the situation and the views of a large number of other friendly governments."

Lloyd said he always had maintained that "if one is going to start a course of conduct which is going to split the UN, this is going to defeat the purpose which members have in mind of enlarging UN."

REAL ESTATE A RULE OF THUMB

A rule of thumb is a rule which generally applies to a situation barring particular or individual circumstance. I would like to give would-be home purched to the price of them to use the would be home purched to the price of home they can afford to pay.

Don white can afford to pay.

During the past months evidence of short money economy has brought forth buyers who are short on cash down payments and more keening aware than in previous years of the mecassity of keeping monthly payments in line with monthly income.

The first rule of thumb is that is be safe, the down payment should be not less than $2,000. The second rule is that the monthly payment, necessary to pay the balance should be not less than $2,000. The second rule is that the monthly payment, necessary to pay the balance should not be more than 25% monthly income.

Double Move

The Democrats at Los Angeles wrote a platform that accepted the main points of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and then tried to save the south for the party by persuading Senator Johnson of Texas to be vice-presidential candidate.

Senator Keating, a Republican from New York, threatened to expose the strategy of the Democratic Party by introducing its platform on civil rights in Congress next month and challenging the Democratic majority to pass it into law.
